Winning Fight against Disease. We have the assurance of Dr. Woods Hutchinson, writing in The modern library's mission." World's Work for January, that the death rate from tuberculosis has declined 10 per cent in the decadefevers of childhood, dirty milk and tion of his successor. reports show a lower national death

Watch Your Purse.

A treatise pointing out several morals might easily be founded upon the recent occurrence of thefts in masculine carelessness in forgetting its customers. All statements made, bage, cleanse your streets and imumbrellas, and it would seem femon purses and handbags might come

It may be true that in a few cases the women who suffer the loss are upon woman's carelessness in general, as their methods were different from those of the purse snatcher and they depend upon chance opportunities when the purse was forgot ten or the owner was in another part of the store.

Just why it should be characteristic of human nature to forget bundles and umbrellas and purses when they are carried in the hands is hard to explain, but most people will admit the fact. While the guards will do all in the future to catch would-be . thieves, women by keeping close watch on purses or handbags when it is necessary to lay them down, and taking care not to leave them on the counters when they leave the store.

What the Library Does.

Mabel Potter Daggett tells in vivid instances 'n The Delineator for January how the library helps the people. She starts with the children, whose interest is stimulated by the telling of stories, the unfalling results of which is a demand for all the books they can get "with stories like that." She tells how the Ilbraries teach the immigrant English, enabling him to work at his trade, worthy young man and he will per-which his ignorance of the language form his duties faithfully.
